- London
- £1000
- Temporary
- Inspiring Interns
- - Alex Townley
 - Ref: Totaljobs/4491/58385725

This innovative mobile app development agency is growing rapidly due to its unique business offering and service working with a range of top clients such as Waterstone's, Next and Deliverance.

This is a paid internship opportunity. Salary: £1,000 per month.

How can you expect to spend your day?

- Collaborating with their development team, learning how to build, optimise, design and deliver beautiful mobile apps with fantastic design and features. This will include learning how to convert websites to mobile sites and connect backend databases to ensure consistency of features and functionality.
- The intern will gain experience in on-site reliability and creating a framework to monitor a diverse set of mobile sites and spot early warnings of issues with the mobile site.
- They will gain experience in the front-end development learning how to make the best user experience possible mainly for mobile eCommerce sites.
- They'll also gain an insight into back-end development, learning how to scale platforms to integrate with as many online shops as possible.

What skills can you expect to gain?

The intern will collaborate with a team of experienced mobile developers who will train and develop the intern. The successful candidate will develop existing skills in .Net and C#. JQuery mobile will also be a part of the process with extra mobile skills developed as per the project required e.g. ASP .Net,

The ideal intern's personality and qualifications:

- The most suitable intern would be a recent graduate, within the last three years, with a degree or experience in computer science or engineering.
- The most important skill the intern must have is knowledge of .Net followed by C#. Knowledge of JQuery Mobile would also be of interest.
- Ideally they'll want to forge a career in mobile development and learn from an experienced team.
